

Parisi
08/856,467

Cont'd A1
baby bottle, said ring being split at an angle such that the exposed ends overlap each other, said exposed ends having mating hook and loop pile fastener for holding said ring securely on said baby bottle;

b) an elongated flat neck extension member extending from said gripping means [such that a distal free end of said member extends from about 2 to about 5 inches past said gripping means, measured along an axis parallel to the longitudinal axis of said bottle]; and

c) a visually stimulating ornament having a flat head shape generally round in shape with clear edges on a distal free end of said extension member, said ornament being positioned about 7 to about 10 inches from the eyes of said baby, said gripping means, extension member and ornament being integral and fabricated out of the same kind of material.

[Cancel claims ~~2-6~~, ~~9~~ and ~~12-22~~ and substitute the following therefor:

A2
~~6~~ 23. The method of training the eyes of an infant to help keep the eyes of the infant focused in a straight manner to prevent the eyes of the infant from crossing during bottle feeding comprising the steps of:

a) placing on said bottle a flexible split clamp ring split at an angle such that the exposed ends overlap each other, said exposed ends having mating hook and loop pile